ULLSWATER

The owner of this very stylish home had always dreamt of having an island in her new kitchen but with space being limited, the solution was to add this cute table with deep drawers that gives both extra worktop and storage, the perfect spot for laying out buffets and drinks. The main kitchen in Farrow and Ball Lamp Room Grey contrasts beautifully with the deep Hague Blue on the tall bank of larder and fridge cabinets. Living brass handles with their natural patina add a warm golden tone to the furniture, with the colour being picked up in the pretty little wall lights set into the tongue and groove panelling behind the Esse range cooker. Extra wide pan drawers either side of the cooker give ample storage for pots and pans and crockery, fitted with internal shallow drawers for cutlery and utensils. The antique brass Perrin and Rowe tap is in keeping with the style of the kitchen but with the modern functionality of instant hot water for teas and coffees. Style is everything in this beautiful kitchen, even the larder is dressed to perfection.

WESTRA

A large open plan extension was added to the back of this classic period property and a striking black and white Shaker kitchen added the element of drama needed for this couple who love entertaining. To avoid the tall bank of cabinets and breakfront larder dominating the space they were painted in a soft white, Little Greene Paint Company Shirting, the perfect contrast to the Farrow and Ball Off Black used on the main kitchen and the dedicated bar area. Paired with a crisp marble type quartz worktops, white ceramic Belfast sink and herringbone grey washed oak ceramic tiles the room still feels light and spacious. The double width larder features pull-out internal drawers for excellent food storage.

CATHEDRAL

This very spacious family home in a leafy suburb near the centre of Cardiff needed an updated family kitchen and utility room. By extending the property out to the side the owners kept the beautiful Victorian bay french doors into the garden and added light into the new kitchen with glazed ceiling panels and floor to ceiling glass doors. With the space flooded with light the new kitchen offers fantastic storage and workspace on both the main cooker run and the island with seating. A utility room off the kitchen includes a feature open pantry and additional cooking facilities for the owner's mother to use. The kitchen features both a breakfast cupboard and a large larder unit, a prep sink with hot tap and a range cooker built into a newly created chimney.

LLANBETHERY

This old farmhouse in a sleepy Vale village has been totally transformed with a large extension to the rear of the property with full width bi-fold doors opening onto the garden and views to the open countryside beyond. As the kitchen was to be part of this new family living space with adjoining dining and lounging areas, it was important to the owners that the kitchen looked more like furniture than a kitchen, whilst still being a practical cooking space. By recessing the American fridge freezer into an alcove formed in the adjoining utility area the tall larder and fridge melt into the background whilst the feature glazed wall cabinets with cute nickel latch fittings become a focal point. The large island has an open slatted shelving unit at one end, a pretty view when coming into the room, and a small casual seating area tucked out of the way by the full height glazed panels. The adjoining utility room features matching furniture with open shelving for pretty storage with the functional laundry appliances neatly hidden out of sight.

PARK VIEW

This stunning new build property in the traditional heart of Penarth features a classic Shaker kitchen with chimney mantle, chef's choice range cooker, larder and breakfast cupboard along with a luxuriously sized island with seating for all the family. The deep blue paint was a bold choice but with floor to ceiling bi-fold doors along the entire open plan space and a crisp white quartz worktop the room still feels light and airy. Having a dedicated breakfast cupboard with integrated coffee machine and a prep sink with hot tap alongside makes this the perfect spot to prepare drinks for guests whilst keeping out of the way of the cook. Full height larder, microwave oven housing and American fridge freezer are all tucked on the side wall so as not to dominate the room whilst offering plenty of space for the family shopping.

HIGHFIELD

A sleek, glossy white kitchen had already been fitted in this traditional house but when the new owner and her husband decided to add an extension, they finally had the chance to have the simple, classic Shaker kitchen that they had always wanted. This pared back style with soft off-white painted doors, solid oak and marble-like quartz worktops, subway tiles, traditional Belfast sink and an engineered oak floor works beautifully in the new family space alongside a vintage wood table and bench seating in the dining area and large, comfy sofas in the lounge area. A utility room in matching style completes the space.
